Instructions:

The SAFFRON trial had two possible groups that each person could have been randomly assigned to. The 'intervention group' who had the opportunity to receive psychosexual interventions to help with sexual difficulties, or the 'ETAU' group who received routine care, with the addition of a self help booklet. In order to understand if people had a preference for one group over another we are asking you to place an X on the line indicating the strength of your preference for enrolment in one group over the other.

I extremely prefer the intervention group	I moderately prefer the intervention group	I slightly prefer the intervention group	I have no preference	I slightly prefer the ETAU group	I moderately prefer the ETAU group	I extremely prefer the ETAU group
